C[illegible] for War.

NEW YORK, Nov 1[illegible].—A meeting attended by about [illegible] Americans, was held at Steinway Hall this evening, Wm. M. Evarts presiding. He made a strong speech which was received with great applause. At the close S. S. Cox also addressed the meeting. Resolutions were adopted calling on the President to use any prompt and decisive action consistent with the dignity and the prestige of the government. The Juniata is ready for sea. Two hundred and fifty more men have been added to the force at the Brooklyn Navy Yard [illegible] Yard.

The steamship [illegible] arrived to-day with the American newspapers which she took to Havana but which the Spanish authorities would not permit to be landed.

PITTSBURG, Nov 18.—The National Trust Company suspended payment to-day on account of the unexplained absence of the Cashier. The Directors say all the liabilities will be [illegible] paid.

New York News.

N[illegible] Nov 1[illegible].—The [illegible] to-day is attributed to the fact that a telegram has been received from Gen. Sherman saying he is opposed to war [illegible]

A special statement of the condition of the Pacific Mail [illegible] from May 1st to Oct. 1 [illegible] expenditures $2,[illegible] leaving a balance of $[illegible] as the earnings for five months. It is said that no account is taken in this statement of insurance, wear or tear. It is stated that [illegible] into the disposition of the millions carried annually by the Company showed fraud, corruption and mismanagement and the necessity for reorganizing the concern.

Trade is dull and dealers find it difficult to make expenses and meet the demands upon them.

Castello, the commander of the Tornado, says the crew and men on the Virginius were treated with such consideration as their character and the necessity of safe keeping would allow. He says the capture made the people of Santiago delirious with enthusiasm.

The testimony in the Tweed case was concluded yesterday.

Robt. Parker, one of the jurors in the Stokes case, was arrested to-day for bribery in that trial.

MacMahon Wants a [illegible]

PARIS, Nov 17.—MacMahon sent a message to the Assembly to-day in which he says it has been decided to ask for a prolongation of the President's term to seven years.

C[illegible] between Pio and Wilhelm.

BERLIN, Nov 17.—It is not denied in official circles here that the Pope wrote a second letter to the German Emperor. The fact that it has not been published is ascribed to the circumstance that it treated of matters strictly personal to his Majesty and in no way to be used [illegible] political subjects. It has not been nor will it be answered by the Emperor. The German Government has addressed a remonstrance to the French Government on account of the pastoral circular issued by the Bishop of Nancy ordering prayers for the recovery of Metz and Strasbourg.

Railroad Schemes in Panama.

PANAMA, Nov [illegible].—Costa Rica is chiefly taken up with her railroad schemes. Congress has approved the new contract to enable contractor Harry Meiggs to extend the railroad to the Pacific, which the old contract did not provide for. The outlay of $6,000,000 for the construction of a part of the road from [illegible] would leave the contractor [illegible] of the new contract would enable him to make it up.

Prompt Seizure of a Filibustering American Vessel.

The American filibustering steamer Gen. Sherman entered the harbor of Aspinwall on the 3d inst. under the name of Gen. [illegible], and was at once seized by Capt. Cushing of the United States steamer Wyoming for using illegal papers and sailing under the flag of Honduras while claiming to be an American vessel.

CANADA.

KINGSTON (Ont.), Nov. 17.—It is believed that the United States steamer [illegible] with forty officers and men has been lost with all on board. No particulars [illegible] the vessel.

MEXICO.

MATAMORAS, Nov [illegible].—The mail from Monterey brings news that the Federal troops are occupying Monterey and Saltillo to maintain order. General Zepeda, deposed Governor of the State of Coahuila, is at Saltillo. He has organized several hundred State troops, and another conflict between Zepeda and friends of the State is anticipated.

Five hundred Federal troops were dispatched to escort a large conducta of silver from [illegible] Monterey to prevent it from falling into the hands of either of the opposing parties.

Gen. Di Cesnola, on his way to Cyprus, there to continue his excavations, stopped in Turin and was entertained by Count Sclopis, who will be remembered as the president of the Alabama arbitration at Geneva. At the entertainment Count Sclopis and his wife used for the first time the magnificent silver services which had been presented to them severally by the United States government and the American representatives. Count Sclopis, who has recently acquired the English tongue, and who in giving the toast spoke in English out of compliment to the guest of the evening, whose language by adoption it had become, said that he could not have desired a more fitting occasion in which to have employed those presents. This compliment was all the more graceful coming from one who had taken from the first a very great interest in the Cyprian antiquities, and who, besides having been president of the Geneva arbitration, had been [illegible] president of the Italian senate, and is the present president of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Turin.

Madame Loyson, the beloved spouse of Pere Hyacinthe, is a wonderful woman. We are dumb with admiration at the energy with which she supports the radical doctrines of her [illegible] husband. Two months since the cable informed us that she had presented the Pere with a son. The English Weekly Mail of October 4th announces that she last week presented Pere Hyacinthe with a son, for whom the ladies of Geneva are making up a purse. And now [illegible] dispatch of yesterday announces that on Saturday she presented Pere Hyacinthe with a son. It is good so far as it goes, but what will his reverence do if it keeps up?

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 18.—George Fusign, confined in the county jail for burglary, tried to break out of prison and came near getting away. He opened the lock of his cell door and got into the garden. A trusty saw him, and when he tried to stop him Fusign knocked him down with a key. The alarm was given and the officers soon secured the prisoner.

A two thousand dollar trotting race will come off at Agricultural Park on Saturday between the California horse Sam Purdy and the Eastern horse St. James, best three in five.

The contemplated $20,000 match between Daniels and Thad Stevens was not consummated and it is doubtful if terms can be agreed on.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 18.—The United States revenue cutter [illegible] was sold to-day to John Birmingham, at auction, for $17,000.

The steamer Costa Rica, which ran ashore at the Golden Gate a few weeks since, will be ready for sea in about three weeks.

Tax Collector Austin has paid to the Treasurer $110,558 41 of the State's [illegible] of money held by him under protest and $190,000 on account of the city.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 18.—Mayor Alvord sent to the Clerk of the Supervisors his veto of the order granting to H. J. Booth & Co. the Central Basin in Mission Bay, for purposes of a ship yard, during the present month.

Mining dividends were paid here to the extent of $213,100.

Receipts at the Custom House during the first half of this month were $386,657 86.

The investigation of the charges recently made against Gen. La Grange, Superintendent of the Mint, has been commenced. The proceedings are not public.

Geo. Merrill and James Hall, two Industrial School graduates, have been arrested on a charge of having knocked Thomas [illegible] down last Sunday evening, and robbed him of his watch, money and other valuables. The accused have been fully identified.

The body of an unknown man was found floating in the bay at Yellow Bluff, near Saucelito, to-night. There were wounds upon his face and head, and a Bulletin of yesterday was found in his coat pocket, which showed that death must be recent. The coroner of Marin county took charge of the remains.

James Coul[illegible] off a wharf to-night into the hold of a barge and received very serious injuries. He was taken to the station house, thence to the hospital.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—Edward [illegible], jointly indicted with Geo. Hoge, has been found guilty, as charged, of robbery, but not of any previous conviction. This saves him from imprisonment for life. His confederate, Hoge, will be tried to-morrow.

[illegible] Interior California.

REDWOOD, Nov 18.—The preliminary examination of the parties who killed H. H. Green at Pescadero on the night of Nov. 7th concluded to-day, after four days hearing. The pro[illegible] discharged the prisoners on the ground that they were in possession of the ranch about which the riot occurred and were justified in putting off the Greens. Great indignation is felt throughout this portion of the county at their release by the Judge. The two McLeans, Wm. Dow and Mrs. Kinsey returned to Pescadero. Mr. Kinsey left for San Francisco this evening. One of the prisoners, Wm. [illegible], was discharged during the examination [illegible] motion of the prosecution.

REDWOOD, Nov 18.—The citizens of Redwood City and vicinity have this evening held a meeting at the Court House to express indignation at the discharge of the prisoners in the case of the people vs. Chas. Kinsey and others, who have been examined in relation to their connection with the affair resulting in the affray at Green's ranch, Pescadero, last week. The following dispatch from that place upon the return of certain of the prisoners after their discharge:

"To District Attorney: Wm. Dow and McLean brothers and Mrs. Kinsey have arrived here. We give them until 12 o'clock to-morrow to leave town forever."

The meeting adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, By the people of Redwood City in public meeting assembled, that it is with astonishment and indignation we have learned of the action of Justice Walsh, in discharging the prisoners Charles Kinsey and wife, William Dow, A. McLean and Mike McLean, in the case of the people against Kinsey and others. Case has attracted public notice and attention to a large degree, and we have watched the testimony and proceedings with no interest other than a desire that justice should be done, and from the evidence in the case we feel confident that so far as the action of the magistrate could accomplish that result, the ends of justice have been defeated by the discharge of the prisoners without putting them on trial.

Resolved, That such a result could not have been reached except through gross ignorance, stupidity or undue influence of others.

Resolved, That a magistrate who for any cause commits so great an outrage against justice is unworthy of position, and we now request him to resign the office of Justice of the Peace of this township.

Resolved, That the parties should be re-arrested and brought to a fair and impartial trial.

Andrew Teague, M. G. Kelly, Curtis Baird, Samuel Bean, committee.

We are just in receipt of information from Pescadero stating that the prisoners who returned there had been rearrested.

SAN DIEGO, Nov 18.—The great event of the completion of the main trunk of the San Diego and Arizona military telegraph line was consummated to-day by the arrival at Yuma of the construction party from San Diego. Work was commenced on this line at San Diego by one party on August 28th, the second party at Prescott, September 21, by a third party at Yuma September 18th, and by a fourth party at Maricopa Wells, October 11th. The length of wire already strung is 117 miles. The labor has been performed by soldiers under civilian foremen. The number of working days aggregate [illegible]. The date of completion is more than one month sooner than the earliest date set by the Superintendent at the commencement. Remembering the great distance of the poles and other materials moved, the difficulties of supplying the working parties with water and forage on the desert and dry barren plains, the intense heat prevailing, the completion of the line thus early surprises all [illegible] bearing burden. The General Superintendent of construction and location of the route was under the charge of R. R. Haines of the Western Union Telegraph Company, assisted by Capt. George F. Price, Fifth Cavalry. The foremen of construction were D. M. Killop, George H. Wilson and A. W. F. Ladd, civilians, R. H. Howe, Thos. J. Atkinson and Wm. [illegible], commanders of troops; Capt. Wm. [illegible], Capt. Geo. H. Price and Lieut. John [illegible] Trout. The branch line to [illegible] from Maricopa Wells is being rapidly erected and [illegible] will be completed [illegible] Dec. 1st. [illegible] telegram with each other and various departments [illegible] completion.

It has rained here [illegible] in the afternoon. Raining [illegible] during the evening.

The military telegraph from San Diego via Fort Yuma and Maricopa Wells to [illegible] was finished to-day. The line from Maricopa Wells to Tucson [illegible] completed. The new line connects with the Western Union at San Diego.

MERCED, Nov 18.—This morning two men named Taylor and Scroggin [illegible] and attempted to effect the escape of Wm. McClung from jail by prying off some boards in the rear of the building, which is a small wooden structure. As they were in the [illegible] commencing operations, Deputy Sheriff J. [illegible] Kendrick surprised and placed them under arrest. They were then lodged in jail on the charge of attempting to effect the escape of a prisoner. This afternoon, after two [illegible], Wm. McClung was brought before Judge [illegible], who sentenced him to one year's imprisonment in San Quentin. The lightness of the sentence is partly attributable to the exertions of his wife, whom he shot, in his behalf.

Pursuant to order of our Fire Department four cisterns are now being constructed in the business portion of the city.

THE VIRGINIUS

[illegible] OF THE NEWS AT WASHINGTON—A LITTLE HISTORY.

WASHINGTON, Nov 6.—The capture of the steamship Virginius by the Spanish gunboat Tornado is not likely, it is said in official circles, to lead to any diplomatic complication. The last time the Virginius received the protection of the navy, at Colon, when Commander Reed of the Kansas shotted his guns and convoyed the Virginius out of the harbor, it was a question whether she was entitled to that protection. Her papers were examined by the United States Consul and pronounced regular so far as her register was concerned, which entitled her to the protection of the United States. The commander of the Kansas, however, plainly expressed his opinion that the vessel had undoubtedly forfeited that protection, but as he must be guided by the advice of the Consul, he would waive personal opinion, and see that the Virginius was duly protected in making her exit from the harbor of Aspinwall. The Virginius has not since that time been in an American port, and her register as an American vessel is supposed to remain the same, but how far she is entitled to the protection of the United States Government can only be determined upon the proper presentation of all her papers to the State and Treasury Departments. A blockade exists on the coast of Cuba, so that, if the Virginius was first discovered in Cuban waters, and succeeded in making her escape on the high seas, and was overhauled by the Spanish gunboat outside of [illegible] waters, then it will be for the Spanish government to indemnify the owners of the vessel for any injury they may sustain. But it is the belief here that the Virginius has forfeited her right to sail under the American flag, and the term filibuster is only considered at the State Department as an euphemism for pirate. The tenor of the correspondence which passed between the commander of the Spanish gunboat Bazan and the commander of the U. S. S. Kansas, last summer, shows how the Spanish government regards the Virginius, and the instructions which have been issued from time to time to the Spanish naval officers in the event of their running across this vessel.

Much interest is felt in Washington to learn the result of the [illegible], as well as the names of the [illegible], among whom, it is believed, will be found that of Colonel Ryan, for some time a resident of Pennsylvania avenue. The Cuban sympathizers here are depressed more than ever. The loss of the Virginius and the difficulty experienced of late to raise money do not encourage the patriots.

IS SHE ENTITLED TO THE PROTECTION OF THE UNITED STATES?

To the Editor of the Tribune:—The telegram announcing the capture of the Virginius states that her crew and passengers will be tried as pirates. The question now arises: Was the Virginius an American vessel? Twice at Aspinwall, although it was well known that this steamer was engaged in making war on a nation friendly to the United States, did the American Consuls assert that her papers were in order, and obtained armed convoy against threatened Spanish capture. In Venezuela, at Curacao, at Savanilla in Colombia, all United States Consuls recognized this ship as American. Has not the Virginius forfeited her title to her register? May not Spain exact (and cite as a precedent the Alabama claims) at some [illegible] indemnity for losses sustained through the instrumentality of this American ship?

The Virginius is of English build and was originally destined for illicit trade. Captured as a blockade runner, she was sold and became nationalized, and most likely has traveled ever since under the register obtained by her purchaser, while really she may have had a dozen different owners since, and every one of those owners aliens.

Some facts in the history of the Virginius during her West India cruise may serve to throw light on the subject of her nationality. After having undergone repairs at Aspinwall, the expenses of which were borne by a Dutch merchant who afterward became the real owner of the ship, the Virginius, with the Cuban General Quesada, found refuge in the Island of Curacao, and although there watched by a lumbering Spanish frigate, she escaped to Venezuela with the United States Vice Consul at Curacao, Capt. Williams, aboard. The arms and supplies on board intended for the Cuban patriots were sold or bartered off by Quesada to Guzman, the President of Venezuela.

In the autumn of 1872 this steamer returned to Curacao; her crew were all discharged, and the same Williams became commander of her, with a crew from that island—really not an American among them all. Williams is a Dane by birth and has resided for the last 15 years at Curacao; he is a citizen of the place, and, although claiming United States citizenship, it is doubtful if he has any other title than that of his protection papers, when a common sailor in the United States. From Curacao Williams left for Savanilla, United States of Colombia, and from that port obtained permission from the Collector to enter the Magdalena river, where [illegible] the crew abandoned the vessel. The [illegible] in those waters several months, while Quesada proceeded to Bogota and tried in every manner, but unsuccessfully, to dispose of the vessel to the Colombian Government. [illegible] the Dutch merchant [illegible] Barranquilla [illegible] was then shipped at Barranquilla, and with these men Williams made from Aspinwall a successful run to Cuba, and from there to Jamaica, where he left the ship to resume, no doubt, his United States Vice Consulship at Curacao. Whether the United States Consuls at Aspinwall and Savanilla [illegible] that the crew of the Virginius were Americans when they were discharged at Kingston, Jamaica, the American Consul insisted on the three months' extra pay due by law to American seamen discharged in a foreign port. These few facts may [illegible] the public to judge whether the Virginius belongs to the United States, and how far our Government will be justified in [illegible] the vessel and [illegible] the crew.

NEW YORK, Nov. [illegible] H. I.

A TOWEL FOR EACH.—It is not uncommon in [illegible] for all the members of the family to use the same towel for wiping their hands and faces. I am often surprised to see how this practice prevails even among people of considerable cultivation. [illegible] and plenty of cold and [illegible] water and a good bath tub, and all the [illegible] health.

LETTER FROM LEBANON

[BY OUR LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

LEBANON, Nov 18, 1873.

Much of the fall season of 1872 and the spring of this year were unusually favorable for an abundant harvest; this fall so far is no less encouraging. During the last three weeks copious showers and warm sunshine have followed each other in succession. Grass is making rapid progress, plowing and sowing are quite general, the early sown wheat looks remarkably well. At no period in the history of the State were farmers so comfortable, rich and independent as they are at present, or so full of hope as to their future prosperity. They are now lenders of money and not borrowers as formerly. While the large majority of them can lend their thousands of dollars, the smallest and poorest of them can say, "thank God I am clear of debt and I have got a fair start." In former years buyers could dictate prices at pleasure and say to farmers, we will give so much for your wheat, but the result of the farmers clubs and the union and co-operation among them by means of the organization of "Granges," have put them in a position to say to buyers, we will take so much for our wheat and no less.

LEBANON

Is a small town located near the banks of the Santiam river, and within the bounds of the extensive, fertile and beautiful "Albany Prairie." It has four good general stores, several mechanics shops, two physicians, an excellent academy, two Churches and a first class flouring mill. There are some neat cottages and a few good public buildings. The farmers of the neighborhood are men of unusual intelligence, wealth and influence, whose power is felt in Linn county and the Willamette valley. The [illegible] Albany, but there is a growing tendency to share their business with Lebanon. This is strengthened by the merchants enlarging their establishments and adapting them to the wants of the people. The chief cause is the erection of the

LEBANON FLOUR MILL

By Elkins Brothers, and the business manner in which it is conducted. At this mill farmers and merchants can get as good flour and feed as is made in the Willamette Valley. The farmers can get as high a price for their wheat as at Albany, thereby saving [illegible] miles of drayage. The mill has a constant supply of water all the year from the Santiam river, the machinery is of the most modern and improved kind, the mill itself is built in the most substantial manner, at a cost of $30,000, and is kept in the best condition possible. The granary holds 8,000 bushels of wheat. The owners grind extensively for the farmers and ship largely to the Portland and San Francisco markets, where ready sales and good prices are obtained, and are making arrangements to ship flour to Liverpool. They have bought considerable wheat this season for shipment, and are making arrangements by means of additional warehouse accommodation to buy still more extensively next year. The merchants of the town will do the same, and this will attract and concentrate a large additional trade and business at Lebanon.

THE ALBANY AND SANTIAM CANAL

That will be finished by January, will be a valuable auxiliary to the business of Lebanon for transporting wheat, flour and other freight at all seasons of the year, particularly during the winter months, when Lebanon is almost cut off from the outer world for drawing purposes by reason of the bad state of the roads. The building of this canal, at a cost of $[illegible],000, is a good evidence of the wealth and enterprise of the farmers of the Albany Prairie. It will be of great value to the business men of Lebanon, the farmers of the district and the manufacturing interests of Albany. Mr. Luther Elkins is the President of the company, and Mr. Tilton, son of General Tilton, a young man only 19 years of age, is the engineer in charge of the construction of the canal. Blood will tell.

THE LEBANON ACADEMY,

Under the care of the Rev. L. M. Nickerson, is one of the valuable institutions of Lebanon. The Principal and his lady, Mrs. Nickerson, are great favorites with the [illegible] pupils. The attendance during the winter [illegible] averages 125 and from 70 to 75 during the summer session. The former commences on the first of December, and the latter on the first of April. The building is large and ornamental, the class rooms are convenient, and the grounds are extensive and valuable. The institution is free of debt and has a small endowment fund. The academies, colleges, universities and especially the public schools, are the arteries that contain the life blood of the nation. So long as they are amply sustained in their integrity by the appointment of well paid and thoroughly competent teachers, under the superintendence of men of integrity, high honor and of a patriotic spirit, and not made a convenient means of rewarding low, mean partisan politicians, the liberties of the Union and the republic are safe, and the rapid progress, prosperity and development of the country guaranteed beyond all doubt. There is no better sign of the good sense of the parents of this State, or of hope for its future advancement, than the general desire and great efforts of such to secure a good education for their children.

THE GRANGERS

The Lebanon Grange held their monthly meeting in Lebanon on Saturday afternoon. The day was exceedingly fine, the attendance was very large, the proceedings most harmonious, and [illegible] number of new members were initiated. This is one of the most popular movements that ever took place among the farmers of Oregon, and [illegible] one of the most successful in promoting harmony, unity and successful co-operation in securing the legitimate reward for their labor. One of the securities for wise counsel, prudent actions and successful results on the part of these organizations is the fact that the most intelligent, influential and honorable farmers in the State are numbered among the Masters, Secretaries and other officers and members. Such men as Mr. R. A. Irvine, Master, Mr. J. J. Smith, Secretary, and Mr. C. P. Burkhart, President of the State Agricultural Society, are samples of the members of the Lebanon Grange.

TANGENT

Is a small town on the line of the Oregon and California Railroad, and about twelve miles from Lebanon and the same distance from Albany. The town is favorably located in the Albany Prairie, and is an important entrepot for [illegible] and forwarding wheat to Portland for shipment. Messrs. J. [illegible] & Son are the proprietors of one of the most convenient and [illegible] warehouses on the line of the railroad. They will forward this season 100,000 bushels of wheat, and [illegible] the satisfactory manner in which they have managed their business and thereby secured the confidence of the farmers of the district, that they will require to make a large addition to their warehouse [illegible] next year. The farmers of the district are men of wealth and influence, surrounded with [illegible] Mr. Martin [illegible] reaped thirty five bushels [illegible] thirty bushels. A rich soil, a good climate and [illegible] cultivation can accomplish great results. He weighed in my presence a fleece of twelve pounds from a [illegible] year old [illegible] just three times the average weight from ordinary sheep. Farmers are waking up to the importance of good stock.

NORTHWEST.

BRYANT ON DARWIN

In a speech made by the poet Bryant at a meeting of the alumni of Williams College he thus treated Darwinism:

It is a good while since the remark was made by an English wit that he did not like to look at monkeys, they seemed to him so much like poor relations. What was regarded at that time as a clever jest has since been taken by an eminent naturalist as the basis of an extensive system which professes to account for the origin of the human species. According to Mr. Darwin man is an improved monkey. In his system the lowest form of animal life is a minute animated cell. A number of these cells come casually together and form a dab of jelly fixed on a crag in the ocean. These somehow become arranged in a sort of symmetry; they gradually acquire organs; they rise to the dignity of oysters and mussels; they multiply by a principle of selection on the part of the parents; they rise higher and higher in the scale of being; they become quadrupeds; they crawl upon the land; they wade [illegible] build houses as beavers; they climb trees as squirrels; their talons and paws become hands furnished with fingers, and we have the monkeys; the monkey acquires the faculty of speech, and matures into a man. It is the old theory Monboddo propounded a hundred years ago, but spreads over a large surface, and set forth with new illustrations.

But allowing all that the author says of the consanguinity of man and the [illegible] animals, admitted that we are of the same flesh and blood as the baboon and the rat, where does he find the proof that we are improving instead of degenerating? He claims that man is an improved monkey; how does he know that the monkey is not a degenerate man, a decayed branch of the human family fallen away from the high rank he once held, and haunted by a dim sentiment of his old dignity, as we may infer from his melancholy aspect? Improvement, Mr. President and gentlemen, implies effort; it is up hill work. Degeneracy is easy; it asks only neglect, indolence, inaction. How often do the descendants of illustrious men become the most stupid of the human race? How many are there, each of whom we may call

The tenth transmitter of a foolish face,

a line of Savage, the best he ever wrote, worth all his other verses put together—

and the face [illegible] more and more foolish from generation to generation. I might instance the Bourbon family, lately reigning in Spain and Naples. I might instance the royal family of Austria. There is a whole nation, millions upon millions, our Chinese neighbors, of whom the better opinion is that they have been going backward in civilization from century to century [illegible] as an emblem of what they are all coming to some thousands of years hence. How then can Mr. Darwin insist that if we admit the [illegible] of man to the inferior animals we must believe that our progress has been upward, and that the noble animals are the progeny of the inferior? Is not the contrary more probable? Is it not more likely that the more easy road, downward, has been taken; that the inferior animals are derived from some [illegible] branch of the human race, and that if we do not labor to keep the rank we hold, our race may be frittered away into the meaner tribes of animals and finally into animalcules? Their may Tweeds become the progenitors of those skulking thieves of the [illegible] wilds, the prairie wolves, or may swim stagnant pools in the shape of horse-leeches, or astute lawyers may be represented by foxes, or great architects by colonies of beavers, or poets by clouds of mosquitoes, [illegible] or doctors of divinity—I say it with all respect for the cloth—by swarms of the mantis, or praying insect, always in the attitude of devotion. If we hold to Darwin's theory [illegible] not—how are we to know that the vast multitudes of men and women on this earth are not the ruins, so to speak, of some nobler species, with more elevated and perfect faculties, mental, physical and moral, but now extinct?

ANECDOTE OF LORD PALMERSTON.—Gordon, the Scotch painter, used to tell this story of Lord Palmerston: "I had exhibited for several years, but without any particular success. One year, however—the year before I painted 'the Corsicans'—Lord Palmerston took a sudden fancy to my picture, called 'Summer in the Lowlands,' and bought it at a high figure. His lordship at the same time made inquiries after the artist, and invited me to call upon him. I waited upon his lordship accordingly. He complimented me upon the picture, but there was one thing about it he could not understand. 'What is that, my lord?' I asked. 'That there should be such long grass in a field where there are so many sheep,' said his lordship promptly, and with a merry twinkle in his eye. It was a decided hit, this, and having bought the picture and paid for it, he was entitled to the joke. 'How do you account for it?' he went on. 'Those sheep, my lord,' I replied, 'were only turned into that field the night before I finished the picture.' His lordship laughed heartily, and said, 'Bravo!' at my reply, and gave me a commission for two more pictures. I have cashed since then some very notable checks of his—dear old boy!"

LIBERTY REGULATED—ANNOYANCES OF WOMEN ON THE BOULEVARDS.—When a pretty woman goes out alone in the streets of Paris, the chances are that she will be accosted by some gallant, especially if she loiters to look in at the shop windows. There is exemption in a homely face and forbidding exterior, also age. To the pretty young American this is the greatest drawback to her enjoyment, accustomed as she is to out of door freedom, and to attack the [illegible] sex rather than be attacked by it. Thus the serpent man prevents our daughter of Eve from wandering through her Paradise. Freedom from the annoyance may be purchased at the price of green goggles and corkscrew ringlets, but the price of liberty in such a case is exorbitant and not to be thought of. An exasperated beauty the other day said that man is a hateful creature, anyhow, and it's a pity we can't do without him, and all those who have been subjected to the same street attacks doubtless repeat the same thing in chorus. There is safety only in being convoyed; the pretty woman must put herself under the flag of the man [illegible] for this flag is recognized and respected by all the piratical cruisers about the streets lying in wait for booty. And as the American woman is superior to any other in personal attraction, she stands more in need of protection than any other. It would be well, therefore, when she [illegible]

The Sta[illegible] says: Last Friday Mr. [illegible] four horses from his place, which he has not yet been able to hear anything of. On Saturday Mr. [illegible] Keizur missed a saddle from his place, which he cannot find, and the supposition is that the horses were first stolen from Mr. [illegible] and the saddle afterwards taken from Mr. Keizur's to put on one of the horses.

A few days ago a man by the name of Phillips came from Fort Colville to Walla Walla, and on Friday night last, it is said, he took a horse from the rack at the Court House belonging to one John Lane and sold it to a Chinaman for $80. On the next evening he tried the same trick over, but was captured and put in jail.

THE TERRITORIES

Wood sells in Salt Lake City at ten dollars a cord.

Two million pounds of wheat have been shipped from Cache Valley, Utah, during this fall.

Dr. Thibado has been appointed county physician at Walla Walla, at a salary of $100 per month.

The Washington Territory Legislature passed sixty-four bills which received the Governor's approval.

Over one hundred emigrant families have settled in Walla Walla valley during the past eight weeks.

The Methodist Church at Ogden is nearing completion. The Junction says it will be an ornament to the place.

"Antelope," one of the Montana Indians now in Washington, is pronounced a dear creature by all who see him.

The Montana Missoulian reports that Dacre's pack train had just arrived at Missoula, with 10,000 pounds of apples and pears.

Four hundred and sixty thousand pounds of freight were shipped from Corinne, by wagons to Montana during the last two weeks in October.

A twelve mule team to a wagon freighted with goods from Winnemucca, reached Boise City on the 8th inst., having been on the way 41 days.

The amount of flour produced in Montana for exportation from this season's crop will not amount to more than one-fourth as much as last year.

Messrs. N. S. Porter, A. A. Phillips and John M. Murphy, of Olympia, were selected as the board to audit the accounts of E. T. Gunn, Esq., for Territorial printing.

The ship Springfield, Captain Dwight, is loading at Port Gamble for Shanghai. Her cargo is large spars and heavy timber. Her dimensions are about 1,000 tons.

The respective Governors of the Territories of Idaho, Montana, Utah and Washington have set their people to turkey-stuffing by proclaiming a day for Thanksgiving.

One hundred and forty-two head of beef cattle and 481 head of mutton sheep were taken to Olympia from Kalama last week. They came from east of the mountains.

A telegram from Steilacoom informs the Courier that Mr. Dickens does not retire from the editorial management of the Express. The second volume will begin November 20th.

Chicken thieves are doing Ogden. There is no more effectual way of ridding a country of these fowl thieves than to feed the birds on nitro glycerine. It saves funeral expenses.

Margaret Gibbons, of Seattle, W. T., asks for information of the whereabouts of John Gibbons. When last heard from in 1866, he was in Williamsburg, Brooklyn and New York.

The Denver papers are making another effort to get up a San Juan excitement, while hundreds of poor miners are down in that country starving, and trying to beg their way out of it.

At Port Gamble they are fitting up in good shape a free reading room, where young men can spend their time profitably and keep away from the saloons. The mills are running now on two thirds time.

Two steamboats are frozen up in the Missouri river at Bismarck, a short distance below the crossing of the Northern Pacific railroad, and it is presumed they will remain there during the winter.

Washington advices apprise us of the disposal by the United States Supreme Court of the case of Rodgers, Territorial Auditor of Montana. The decision goes to show that Rodgers is an officer without warrant of law, and that he has been and is now illegally in possession of and discharging the duties of Auditor. The mandate of the Court orders the Supreme Court of Montana to issue the writ of ouster in due course, displacing W. H. Rodgers from the office of Territorial Auditor.

From the Astorian: "On the 8th inst. three schooners abreast—the Carolita, Capt. Simpson, the Energy, Capt. Jones, with merchandise for Espy & Co., the Louisa Morrison, Capt. Peterson, with merchandise for J. & T. Crellin,—entered Shoalwater Bay from San Francisco. The Carolita sailed on the return trip loaded with oysters, on the 11th, and the Energy and Morrison on the 13th. The schooner Bill the Butcher is now in the bay, having arrived on the 11th, and the Ida Florence is due, having sailed from San Francisco on the 6th. It is estimated that the trade of the bay this season will amount to over $200,000 at present prices."

Now comes the Walla Walla Spirit with this bit of gossip about the Yakima gold mines:

The reports from the new gold mines in the Yakima country are anything but favorable. Several parties have returned during the week. Some of them pronounce the whole thing a balk, while others say there is gold there, but the quantity is insufficient to pay. At the time these parties left there were only thirty or forty men there, but the number has probably increased to 200. We are now confirmed in our opinion that the mines are not only inferior, but that the gold discovered is very coarse. We hope that there will be no more wild goose chases taken by our people—at least this winter.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 19, 1873.

NATIONAL PRIDE AND COMMON SENSE.

When the Lloyds sent rebel cruisers out from under the very nose of the British Admiralty, to range the seas under letters of marque, and prey upon our commerce, we were very indignant. We demanded satisfaction. For a long while it was refused. We chose Ministers to the Court of St. James with especial reference to this question, and when they proved unequal to the task we changed them for others until at last we got the Geneva Tribunal and fifteen millions of damages. In all this time we were very peaceful. We didn't want to go to war with our beloved cousins. And when Charles Sumner, grown impatient at the delays of diplomacy, uttered his famous speech, hinting at arbitration by the sword, we rebuked and censured him. Times are changed. Spain has a rebellion on hand. The Government of the United States is neutral. But the Virginius is fitted out in an American port, by American citizens, to carry arms and munitions of war to this rebellious colony. The United States will not recognize the independence of Cuba; she will not grant her belligerent rights. But when an armed expedition of her citizens is sent out under the command of a Cuban officer, the object and the destination thereof being known, no hindrance is put in the way. In a few years that vessel is captured, while engaged in her illicit trade, several of the leading filibusters are executed, and a cry for vengeance goes up forthwith. Before the offending government has an opportunity to make reparation for the outrage we commence to talk of war; our navy yards resound with notes of preparation for the fight; our national pride has been wounded, our national honor has been affronted—"let us (not) have peace!" Charles Sumner's fiery rhetoric would be loudly cheered just now.

We are told by some that unless suitable reparation is made war must be declared. This is at the dictation of national pride. Perhaps it is not to be condemned. But common sense would seem to dictate that all peaceful methods of settling this unfortunate difficulty should be exhausted before resort to arms is had. Let us give Spain a chance to repair the injury before we talk of war.

A contemporary characterises a former article on this subject which appeared in the OREGONIAN as "an angry protest against the proceedings of our government in this affair." This is unjust, to say the least. In the article referred to the OREGONIAN called attention to the nature of the Virginius expedition, and the indisputable fact that the men engaged therein were filibusters, who had embarked in disregard of the laws of neutrality. These men had a right, as American citizens, to enter the Cuban service. But the country of which they were citizens was at peace with Spain, and when they took up arms they violated obligations which our statutes of neutrality laid upon all citizens. We did not in that article, as did a contemporary, attempt to define the forfeiture of rights as citizens of the United States which was worked by such a violation of law. It is not sufficient to say that some of these murdered men had committed no overt act against Spain.

In addition to what we have already said, we would urge the consideration that our Government has been notably lax in its observance of the law of neutrality. We have suffered vessel after vessel, and cargo after cargo to leave our ports without hindering or preventing. We have sympathized with Cuba, our warm-hearted citizens have sent money, provisions and arms to aid the Cuban patriots in their struggle for independence. We have encouraged their cause in every way but the single one of recognition. Our Government has been about half-and-half. In fine, we have not lived up to our own definition of the rights and duties of neutrals, as expounded by our own counsel before the Geneva Tribunal of Arbitration. Aside from the consideration just cited we can not condemn this sympathy for struggling Cuba. For over three centuries the Spaniard has ruled over her with cruel rigor. There is no excuse to be made for the heartless outrages which fill the history of that fair island. More than once they have stirred the indignant protest of civilization. But under the government of Castelar we may hope for better things.

We wish to be understood in this matter: the trial of the Virginius filibusters was characterized by a cruel haste, and their execution was barbarous to the last degree. Spain should be called to account for the atrocity, and such measures should be taken as will prevent a repetition of the massacre. But the Government of the United States has no business to talk about war before it has given Spain a fair opportunity and reasonable time to make reparation. If our national dignity is to figure in this unhappy affair let us not rush with undignified haste into war with a nation that is struggling for existence against fearful odds. And we suggest that the press could be in a much better business than sending the war spirit with its maddening hurrah through the hearts of our people.

THE CAPTURED VIRGINIUS.

The vessel whose capture is just now occupying the attention of the press throughout the United States, has a history full of marine adventures. She was built on the Clyde, in 1864, and was engaged as a blockade runner, under the name Virgin, up to the time the Union forces took possession of Mobile, when she was captured. She was put into the Revenue service, but being found unsuitable for that service, she was sold at auction in October, 1870, to a son of Marshall O. Roberts, of New York city. On account of her small draught of water—eight feet when loaded—she was purchased and fitted up by a company of Cubans in New York. In 1871, she took a Cuban expedition under command of Rafael Quesada to Venezuela, and thence to the Island. Since that time she has never returned to the United States. At one time, it will be remembered, our Government vigilantly watched the movements of Cubans engaged in the exportation of arms to the insurgents. This scrutiny was evaded by sending the arms and troops to Venezuela by vessels chartered for South American ports. The Virgin or Virginius—used to lie in Magdalena river waiting for the freight thus brought to her. In another place will be found dispatches from Washington which afford some information concerning this vessel.

As to her being in this service of aiding and abetting the revolution in Cuba, there has never been any dispute. It is said that she was under American colors at the time of her capture. This is true; but it remains to be seen whether a vessel sailing under the flag of a neutral power can engage in hostile expeditions of this kind for several years, and, when apprehended in her unlawful business, still claim the protection of that flag. This question will, doubtless, enter largely into the diplomatic proceedings now in progress between Spain and our Government. The Tornado—the captor of the Virginius—was built in Great Britain for a Confederate privateer. She is an iron vessel, bark-rigged, has a crew of two hundred men and an armament of ten guns, and is reputed to be very swift.

A REMARKABLE JURY.

The verdict of the jury in the Stokes case was a surprise. It was difficult to understand how, under the evidence, the accused could be found guilty of manslaughter in the third degree. Immediately after the verdict had been given in, Judge Davis in his charge to the Grand Jury, said that complaints could be made against certain of the petit jurors for violations of their oath. The conduct of Genter, the famous "eighth juror," gave us some insight into the management of the case. To-day's dispatches inform us that another juror has been arrested for receiving a bribe. There is every reason to believe that the verdict which saved the aristocratic murderer from the gallows, was bought. Some of our Eastern exchanges have censured Judge Davis for the severe language he used in sentencing Stokes. With the recently developed facts before them, we are unable to see how such censure can be justified. There is a very general feeling among New York papers that such juries and such verdicts as pronounced Stokes guiltless of the blood of Fisk, will disgrace New York courts until the elective system of choosing Judges shall be abolished.

The cause of the present financial difficulties of the Sprague family in Rhode Island may be summed up in a single cant phrase: they had too many irons in the fire. Their enormous financial craft was loaded down to within a few inches of the water and when the tidal wave of the panic came upon it, it swamped. From the letters of correspondents, it appears that they had on hand a wonderful variety of enterprises. In Rhode Island they run 280,000 spindles and 28 printing machines, employing 10,000 hands in their print-works and their mills. Then they had enormous sawmills in Maine and New Hampshire, mills at Columbia, South Carolina, and huge farms in Kansas and Texas. Besides these, they owned iron foundries, railroads, steamboats, locomotive works and machine manufactories. Their steamship company owned eight steamers, employed 800 hands, and the property was worth $1,000,000. Their pay roll has reached $25,000 a week. It was no wonder that they failed.

Brooklyn's nine-days' wonder—a breach of promise suit against a dead man—has just been decided. Judge Neilson has held that a promise of marriage is a civil contract; that a repudiation of that promise is, therefore, a breach of contract; that being personally liable, and no more, the individual breaking the contract can be mulcted in damages. "But," said the Judge—and just here the plaintiff's rosy face grew ashy pale, we may presume—"there being no actual injury of person on the part of the plaintiff, her suit can not follow the survival, by his estate, of the deceased defendant." This decision will afford much satisfaction to all dead men whose hopes of a joyful resurrection have been disturbed by reason of the fact that they could not carry their estates with them, away from wrangling heirs and damsels of punctured sensibilities.

Next year, Iceland is to celebrate the tenth centennial of her settlement. She dates her natal day in 800, when her frozen shores were discovered by Naddod, a sea rover. Reikavik, the ancient Capital, was founded fourteen years later, by Ingolf, a Norwegian Chief. The population has, at times, exceeded 100,000, and was, in 1855, 64,003. Famine in its most terrible forms, pestilence, floods and volcanic eruptions have frequently reduced the population to one-half its normal number. Through all these trials Iceland comes up to her tenth centennial with the ruddy youth of the Norse, and with a character for honesty, sobriety and intelligence excelled by no other nation.

HOUSES BUILT BY CHILDLESS MEN.—One of the shows of Buffalo is the "palatial" residence of William G. Fargo, the express man. With the exception, perhaps, of Stewart's big marble house in New York, it is the most costly and pretentious private residence in America. It is an old freak in human nature that men childless, or almost without family, should have such a mania for erecting these huge structures for a home. A. T. Stewart, without chick or child, builds a great cold, gloomy edifice of marble, that looks more like a public building than a private house, and Fargo, with no living children, puts up this immense structure that towers above Buffalo almost as the Capitol does above Washington. A letter writer says: "As we drove past the house in the chilly autumn evening, a single light, in one of the smallest of the forty or fifty rooms of the great building, showed where the little group of occupants had gathered for snugness. Mr. Fargo, the founder of the express business in this country, is much esteemed by his fellow-citizens as a liberal, large-minded business man. Like most of the leading Buffalonians, he has made his way from small beginnings, and it is told here how his enterprise was endangered at its outset by the difficulty he experienced in raising the means to buy his first horse and wagon."

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.—Last Tuesday Mr. Bratland and John, his son, of Cambridge, Isanti county, went out hunting after wild geese, and when on a creek or small lake they separated, each going in a different direction. The son wandered along until he came nearly opposite where his father was, and was creeping along in order to get to the bank of the creek, to discover whether there was any game on it. The father, seeing a moving object, and thinking it was a goose, took aim and fired. The whole charge of buckshot entered the head of his son, killing him instantly. The father hastened to the spot to discover that, instead of killing a goose, he had killed his own son. What must have been the father's feelings, when he looked upon the lifeless body of his boy, whom he had killed by an act of carelessness or haste. Again, we reiterate, that hunters should be made to be more careful while hunting. This is the second case of accidental shooting that has occurred in this section this year.—Anoka Union, Oct. 28th.

CITY.

ON THE WRECK —Yesterday just as the bark W Pearl was nearing the wharf she ran on the old wreck of the French brig which sunk many years ago at the lower end of Flanders' wharf owing to this the vessel could not be hauled alongside the wharf At present she is waiting for the turn of the tide An unsuccessful effort was made to pull her off the old wreck but fearing that the copper would be torn from the hull in so doing Capt Stannard desisted It is thought that the action of the water has recently cut under the side of the wreck thus causing it to move further out in the stream Only a short time since the ship Eddie was lying alongside the wharf and did not touch the wreck We learn that it is Capt Flanders intention to blow this old wreck to pieces as soon as the services of a submarine diver can be secured

PLANS ALTERED —Early this fall the plans and specifications for a new lighthouse at Point Adams were forwarded to Washington for approval Originally the intention was to construct only a lighthouse which would require two keepers and the plans were drafted with that object in view Subsequently it was determined to construct a fog signal in conjunction with the lighthouse by the Lighthouse Department at Washington This would require three keepers It was found impracticable to construct a lighthouse and fog signal with the plans furnished and it was determined to alter them These plans are now at Washington undergoing the required changes Every arrangement is being effected to commence operations on this government improvement early next spring.

IN TROUBLE AGAIN —Mr Ed Kennedy, the gentleman who came near getting an opportunity to make brick for the State, at the present term of Circuit Court on the charge of adultery, is again in trouble Edward attempted to enter a building not his own on Monday evening He couldn t hoist the window conveniently, and so to save time he kicked in the door For this he was arrested and placed in durance vile. Yesterday morning the case came up but Kennedy managed to find a loop hole through which he crawled out and so was turned out to run at large Late last evening we learn that another charge of defacing a building was preferred against him Really what ought to be done with this creature is past the understanding of the M P ' whom he gives no little trouble

OPERATIONS RESUMED —We were shown a letter yesterday written by a gentleman who is now personally superintending the work of improving the channel of the Upper Columbia From the letter we learn that Contractor Montgomery began operations at Devil's Bend on the 4th inst Up to the 12th of the month 24 cubic yards of solid rock had been blasted out. About the 13th inst it was determined to remove from the channel a short distance above the Bend, a number of rocks which are regarded as dangerous to navigation Mr Montgomery s entire force of men are doubtless engaged in removing these obstructions

PLANKING THE HULL.—Carpenters began yesterday to plank the hull of the new steamer which is being built above the sawmill The timbers for the cabin and upper works are all ready and will soon be put together The hull will be ready to launch in the course of two or three weeks, but we learn from the contractor Mr Steffen, that the boat will not be launched the intention being to build the craft just where it now lies and wait for the high water to float her off

RETURNED —Gen Michler who went out to the Coquille river some weeks ago, returned a few days since He made some superficial examinations of the channel of that stream, in compliance with instructions from the Bureau at Washington Not having time to complete the examination of the Coquille river sufficient to enable him to report advisedly he left his assistant to finish the survey while he returned to this city to attend to other official business that claimed his immediate attention.

CHANGE OF VENUE GRANTED —On Monday morning the counsel for the defense in the case of the State vs Chas Mealey, filed a motion in the Circuit Court for a change of venue, asking that it be transferred to Linn county The matter was taken under advisement until yesterday morning, when the Court decided to grant the motion So the case is now transferred to Linn county, and will come up for trial next March

SUPPLYING WITH WATER.—The water works which were constructed some months ago near the Riverside Iron Works to supply the houses in the immediate vicinity with water are in operation They work very satisfactorily The water is first pumped up from the river into a large wooden reservoir, sufficiently elevated to furnish all the houses in the neighborhood and pipes lead in the required directions

SASH FACTORY —From reports it would appear that East Portland is soon to have a sash and door factory We learn that a gentleman from up the valley proposes to erect a factory near the Riverside Iron Works on the east side of the river A building for the express purpose is soon to be constructed and the required machinery placed in operation The factory will be run by steam

ON TRIAL —During the entire afternoon yesterday the case of the State vs Chas Naing was in progress in the Circuit Court The defendant in this case is charged with having assaulted another Chinaman with intent to kill On account of having to use an interpreter in the examination of witnesses the case progressed slowly It will probably go to the jury early this morning

ARRANGING FOR A TOUR.—We learn that Donald McKay the famous Warm Spring scout recently left Fort Klamath for the Umatilla Reservation—where his brother Dr McKay is stationed as Medical Officer—for the purpose of arranging for a tour through the cities of the East with a party of his braves and giving public exhibitions of war dances etc

BRING IT UP —The steam boiler and other necessary apparatus connected with the fog signal at New Dungeness which arrived there a short time since are being put together under the superintendence of Mr Livingston [illegible] at work now at the [illegible] except the machinist The signal will [illegible] ready to sound in a week at the furthest.

BARK W SEWARD —This vessel under command of Capt Stannard arrived here yesterday in tow of the Merrimac The Windward came from San Francisco partially in ballast She brought about 200 tons of assorted cargo When ballast and cargo are discharged the Windward will go down to the lower sawmill and load lumber for Shanghai

[illegible] ENTERTAINMENT —A sociable that is [illegible] will be held by the ladies of the [illegible] Church at the rooms [illegible] evening No charges [illegible] although they propose [illegible] refreshments [illegible] fresh [illegible]

[illegible]

CHAS [illegible] Mr [illegible]

STEAMER ARRIVED The steamer [illegible] arrived [illegible] from San Francisco [illegible]

NEW TRIAL —The motion for a new trial in Dr Glass' case was filed in the Circuit Court yesterday morning Leave was granted the counsel until next Friday morning in which to file affidavits The motion will probably be decided on Saturday Meantime the prisoner remains in the county jail

NO LICENSE —Mr and Mrs Coon who vend spirituous beverages near the corner of Oak and Second streets were arrested last evening The charge preferred was that of selling liquor without a license and both parties gave bonds for their appearance at the Police Court this morning

TO THE UPPER COLUMBIA —To morrow morning Gen Michler will start for the Upper Columbia on official business He goes to examine and superintend operations which are in progress along the channel Gen Michler will be absent about a week

AMUSEMENTS.

Prof J D White gave a very interesting and amusing elocutionary entertainment last evening, at the Good Templar Hall to a large and refined audience

Don t get crazy about the gold mines, or a probable panic but settle down to business just where you are and when you take a notion to invest in a new suit of clothing and desire something really nobby and elegant in that line interview J O NEIL & Co. on the subject. They don t put on any big prices but always endeavor to satisfy on first acquaintance You can t leave their place without entrusting an order to their attention

CATHOLICISM IN GERMANY

CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN THE POPE AND THE GERMAN EMPEROR

NEW YORK Oct 25 —The following two letters recently passed between the Emperor of Germany and the Pope Their contents were briefly stated by cable a few days ago

VATICAN Aug 7 1873—Your Majesty The measures which have been adopted by your Majesty s Government for some time past all aim more and more at the destruction of Catholicism When I seriously ponder over the causes which may have led to these very hard measures I confess that I am unable to discover any reasons for such a course On the other hand I am informed that your Majesty does not countenance the proceedings of your Government and does not approve of the harshness of the measures adopted against the Catholic religion If then it be true that your Majesty does not approve thereof and the letters which your august Majesty has addressed to me formerly might sufficiently demonstrate that you cannot approve that which is now occurring, if I say your Majesty does not approve of your Government continuing in the path it has chosen of further extending its rigor its measures against the religion of Jesus Christ whereby the latter is most injuriously affected will your Majesty then not become convinced that these measures have no other effect than that of undermining your Majesty s own throne? I speak with frankness for my banner is truth I speak in order to fulfill one of my duties which consists in telling the truth to all, even to those who are not Catholics, for every one who has been baptized belongs in some way or other—which to define more precisely would be here out of place—belongs I say to the Pope I cherish the conviction that your Majesty will receive my observations with your usual goodness, and will adopt the measures necessary in the present case While offering to your most gracious Majesty an expression of my devotion and esteem I pray to God that he may enfold your Majesty and myself in one and the same bond of mercy

(Signed) PIO

The Emperor replied as follows

BERLIN Sept 3 1873—I am glad your Holiness has as in former times, done me the honor to write to me I rejoice more at this since an opportunity is thereby afforded me of correcting errors which as appears from the contents of the letter of your Holiness of the 7th of August, must have occurred in the communication you have received relative to German affairs If the reports which are made to your Holiness respecting German questions only stated the truth it would not be possible for your Holiness to entertain the supposition that my Government enters upon a path which I do not approve According to the Constitution of my States such a case cannot happen since the laws and Government measures in Prussia require my consent as sovereign To my deep sorrow a portion of my Catholic subjects have organized for the past two years a political party which endeavors to disturb by intrigues hostile to the State the religious peace which has existed in Prussia for centuries Leading Catholic priests have unfortunately not only approved this movement but joined in it to an extent to open revolt against existing laws It will not have escaped the observation of your Holiness that similar indications manifest themselves at the present time in several European and in some trans atlantic States It is not my mission to investigate the causes by which the clergy and the faithful of one of the Christian denominations can be induced actively to assist the enemies of all law but it certainly is my mission to protect internal peace and preserve the authority of the laws in the State whose Government has been entrusted to me by God I am conscious that I owe hereafter an account of this my kingly duty I shall maintain order and law in my States against all attacks as long as God gives me power I am in duty bound to do it as a Christian monarch even when to my sorrow, I have to fulfill this royal duty against the servants of the Church which, I suppose, acknowledge no less than the Evangelical Church that the commandment of obedience to secular authority is an emanation of the revealed will of God. Many of the priests in Prussia subject to your Holiness, disown to my regret the Christian doctrine in this respect and place my Government under the necessity supported by a great majority of my loyal Catholic and Evangelical subjects of extorting obedience to law by worldly means I willingly entertain the hope that your Holiness upon being informed of the true position of affairs, will use your authority to put an end to the agitation carried on amid the deplorable distortion of truth and abuse of priestly authority The religion of Jesus Christ has as I attest to your Holiness, before God nothing to do with these intrigues any more than has truth to whose banner invoked by your Holiness, I unreservedly subscribe There is one more expression in the letter of your Holiness which I cannot pass over without contradicting although it is not based upon previous information but upon the belief of your Holiness namely the expression that every one that has received baptism belongs to the Pope. The Evangelical creed which as must be known to your Holiness I like my ancestors and the majority of my subjects profess does not permit us to accept in our relations to God any other mediator than our Lord Jesus Christ A difference of belief does not prevent me from living in peace with those who do not share mine and offering your Holiness the expression of my personal devotion and esteem

(Signed) WILLIAM

THOMAS NAST AND THE HERALD —Thomas Nast was lately interviewed by a reporter of the Troy Whig He laughed heartily at the Herald's effort to make him ridiculous by raising money for his benefit declaring it a good joke, and said that the Herald might go on with its subscriptions under one condition—that as fast as the money comes in it shall be turned over to the present sufferers from yellow fever at Memphis or to the laboring poor so many of whom have lately been thrown out of employment in all parts of the country An excellent idea, and the Herald has no right to reject it The Whig reporter learned some interesting facts during his interview with Mr Nast all of them reflecting the highest credit on the distinguished artist "As for Mr Nast himself" says the reporter "we happen to know that he doesn t need or desire any of their exertions It was reported some time ago by the newspapers that during his contest with the Tammany ring he was offered $100 000 to leave his home for three years and travel abroad This report was true with one exception—the amount offered was not $100 000 but $500 000 Then after Tammany was broken the Republican and Democratic parties joined in offering him a subscription which he positively declined as he did once more after the election of Grant While in London during his recent vacation abroad he received papers appointing him honorary commissioner to Vienna an office without pay but merely conferred upon him to facilitate his travels and this proffered position he declined to decline and to go up the continent at all but to remain in England until his return to New York.

CAPTURE OF THE VIRGINIUS

A letter from Havana gives an account of the steamer Virginius from which it appears that on October 30th the Spanish Consul at Kingston advised the Governor at Santiago de Cuba that the Virginius was in the vicinity of Morant Bay The Spanish war steamer Tornado had that morning arrived at Santiago de Cuba and four hours after the Governor received information of the Virginius went in search of her The following day the Tornado under full sail and but little steam as some slight repairs were being made to her machinery came in sight of the Virginius which probably supposed the Tornado to be a sailing vessel as her course was not changed On the Tornado every effort was made to hasten the repairs and at 2 o clock the Chief Engineer pronounced them completed All steam possible was immediately got up and the vessel headed for the Virginius soon reaching a speed of fourteen knots an hour and gaining upon the Virginius

A RACE FOR LIFE

The latter had in the meantime kept on her course but discovering the intentions of the Tornado changed it towards Jamaica and being out of coal commenced to burn petroleum grease fat and other combustibles from the provisions on board such as hams etc Night closed in, and the vessels were in the same relative positions the Tornado however gaining As soon as they got within gunshot, the Tornado fired a gun, followed by three other shots and shells. This brought the Virginius to and two armed boats from the Tornado came alongside took possession of the vessel and made prisoners of all on board At the time of the capture the Virginius was flying the American flag but this was pulled down by a Spanish officer and the Spanish ensign hoisted in its place although the papers of the vessel s dispatch to Colon were handed to him

REJOICING AMONG THE BUTCHERS

After the capture the next two hours were employed in transferring some of the prisoners to the Tornado and putting a prize crew on the Virginius At midnight the two vessels started for Santiago de Cuba and arrived the following day at 3 P M having been joined by the Spanish steamer Cantabro Their arrival created immense excitement and rejoicing among the Spaniards The Governor gave a reception which lasted all night Next day a court martial was held on board the Tornado, which commenced at 10 o clock and terminated at 4 All the prisoners were tried as pirates and findings of the court and sentences were sent to the Captain-General and Admiral in sealed packets After the court had concluded its task all the prisoners with the exception of Bembetta, Jesus del Sol General Ryan and Pedro Cespedes were transferred to the jail of the city escorted by a force of 100 volunteers and a number of marines

GENERAL BURRILL S PROPOSITION

General Burrill it is said coolly asked that all the prisoners should be turned over to him with the exception of the Captain and crew who should be sent to Havana at the disposal of the Commandant General de Marcanatas and declared that within twenty four hours afterwards all should be tried and executed in order to avoid any complication with the "exterior"—that is foreign intervention He also detained a telegram which the U S Consul decided to forward to the United States Consul at Kingston reporting the capture and inquiring as to the nationality of the Virginius The Virginius had her papers in order and was dispatched for Colon All the passengers appearing on the papers as laborers for railroad building there

MARY AND I.

'Twas evening in May and the soft zephyr sighed
Through branches low bending above
My Mary and I as we wandered along
And whisper'd of beauty and love
We'll make us a nest like the birdlings, I said.
And never shall part any more
Oh yes, she replied and can furnish it nice
At HURGREN & SHINDLER S STORE.

Fair creature there s many a wealthier man
Would gladly have you for a bride
But no one can love you more fondly than I—
My treasure my beauty and pride
Oh had I a mansion with carpets of gold
And silver I d cover the floor
But, smiling she said You can purchase the best
At HURGREN & SHINDLER S STORE

I ll spread you a couch upon which to recline
When evening shall call us to rest
Of the fleeciest down — but she said with a sigh
I like a hair mattrass the best
Then so it shall be love and tables inlaid
And seats from some far distant shore?
Oh no she exclaimed They have elegant sets
At HURGREN & SHINDLER S STORE.

But, Mary alas I must sadly confess
My means are but slender as yet
To furnish a house in the style you demand
Would hopelessly plunge me in debt—
To ask you to share my poor lodgings and board
Is something that I should deplore
She said with a smile You can buy very cheap
At HURGREN & SHINDLER S STORE.

To morrow then love let us journey along
To the corner of Alder and Front street—
Tis numbers 98 and 100 river side
Where lovers so happily meet
How many fond souls might be severed for years
From those they so fondly adore

WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 19, 1873

THE CLOSING SCENE

BY THOMAS BUCHANAN READ

Within his sober realm of leafless trees
The russet year inhaled the dreamy air,
Like some tanned reaper in his hour of ease
When all the fields are lying brown and bare.

The gray barns looking from their hazy hills,
O'er the dun waters widening in the vales,
Sent down the air a greeting to the mills,
On the dull thunder of alternate flails.

All sights were mellowed and all sounds subdued,
The hills seemed farther and the streams sang low,
As in a dream the distant woodman hewed
His winter log with many a muffled blow.

The embattled forests, erewhile armed with gold,
Their banners bright with every martial hue,
Now stood like some sad, beaten host of old,
Withdrawn afar in time's remotest blue.

On sombre wings the vulture tried his flight,
The dove scarce heard his singing mate's complaint,
And like a star slow drowning in the light
The village church vane seemed to pale and faint.

The sentinel cock upon the hillside crew—
Crew thrice—and all was stiller than before;
Silent till some replying warder blew
His alien horn and then was heard no more.

Where erst the jay within the elm's tall crest
Made garrulous trouble round her unfledged young,
And where the oriole hung her swaying nest,
By every light wind like a censer swung.

Where sang the noisy martins of the eaves,
The busy swallows circling ever near,
Foreboding, as the rustic mind believes,
An early harvest and a plenteous year.

Where every bird that charmed the vernal feast
Shook the sweet slumber from its wings at morn,
To warn the reapers of the rosy east—
All now was songless, empty and forlorn.

Alone from out the stubble piped the quail,
And croaked the crow through all the dreary gloom;
Alone the pheasant, drumming in the vale,
Made echo in the distant cottage loom.

There was no bud or bloom upon the bowers;
The spiders moved their thin shrouds night by night,
The thistledown, the only ghost of flowers,
Sailed slowly by, passed noiseless out of sight.

Amid all this, in this most dreary air,
And where the woodbine shed upon the porch
Its crimson leaves, as if the year stood there
Firing the floor with its inverted torch,

Amid all this the center of the scene,
The white-haired matron, with monotonous tread,
Plied the swift wheel, and with her joyless mien
Sat like a fate and watched the flying thread.

She had known sorrow. He had walked with her,
Oft supped and broke with her the ashen crust,
And on the dead leaves still she heard the stir
Of his thick mantle trailing in the dust.

While yet her cheek was bright with summer bloom,
Her country summoned, and she gave her all;
And twice War bowed to her his sable plume—
Regave the sword to rust upon the wall.

Regave the sword, but not the hand that drew,
And struck for liberty the dying blow;
Nor him who to his sire and country true
Fell 'mid the ranks of the invading foe.

Long, but not loud, the droning wheel went on,
Like the low murmur of a hive at noon;
Long, but not loud, the memory of the gone
Breathed through her lips a sad and tremulous tune.

At last the thread was snapped, her head was bowed,
Life dropped the distaff through her hands serene,
And loving neighbors smoothed her careful shroud,
While death and winter closed the autumn scene.

A CARD DUEL.

ONE OF THE CRAZY CUSTOMS PECULIAR TO HEIDELBERG STUDENTS

A late English paper tells the following story. A game of cards in which a human life was at stake was played on the 9th of October at the Ritter Hotel, Heidelberg, by four young students, one of whom, Sifred Meyer, was an American from Chicago. It appears that the four men had been intimate friends, and they met, it seems, on the above day at the Swan Tavern, where they drank a good deal, and finally began to quarrel. One of them, Count Ottendorf, called Meyer a cowardly Jew, whereupon the latter promptly challenged him. Ottendorf accepted the challenge immediately, [illegible] in a tone of [illegible] citement, proposed that all four students repair to the Ritter Hotel and there play a game of "sixty-six." The loser should shoot himself with a pistol. This proposition was accepted, and the four students repaired to the hotel. They then ordered wine and cards to be brought up to a private room, and Ludeken, one of the four, procured two loaded pistols from a neighboring [illegible]. The fourth student dealt the cards, and Ottendorf and Meyer seated themselves, a pistol lying by the side of each. The first few minutes the game remained almost even. But then Meyer obtained a single advantage, and Ottendorf, seeing that he was lost, suddenly jumped up, and exclaiming, "Adieu, my friends," seized his pistol and shot himself through the right temple. He fell a corpse to the floor, while his companions stood as if petrified for a moment, and then hurried from the room. When the proprietor of the hotel hastened into the room he found the dead Count lying on the floor. He gave an alarm, and the police started soon after in pursuit of the fugitive students. Late in the afternoon they succeeded in arresting Immich, who made the above statement. Meyer and Ludeken escaped across the French frontier. Ottendorf was the son of a wealthy landed proprietor in Westphalia. At the time of his death he was only nineteen.

CALHOUN'S LAST SPEECH.

This account of the last speech of John C Calhoun in the United States Senate is taken from an [illegible] paper: Calhoun came into the Senate chamber, supported on one side by his venerable and chivalric colleague, A. P. Butler, and on the other by James M. Mason, then Senator from Virginia. He had been unable to attend his place in the Senate for several weeks, but had devoted his expiring energies to the preparation of a great speech in opposition to the admission of California into the Union as a free State, by which the equilibrium, or, as he termed it, the equality of the slaveholding and non-slaveholding States would be destroyed. He was unable to stand without support, and unable to utter even a few short sentences without great difficulty. His large clear eyes shone with supernatural luster, his long white hair brushed back over his head flowed lightly in the air. His face was pale and emaciated, so that the colorless skin seemed to adhere to the osseous framework. The day had been assigned for this speech, which, it was evident, would be his last.

The seats and galleries were filled to their utmost capacity, and yet the silence was oppressive as if in the actual presence of the grim messenger. He calmly and deliberately surveyed the eager faces before and around him, and being assisted to arise, summoned strength to address the chair, and request that the speech he had intended to deliver might be read by his friend from Virginia, Mr. Mason. After the conclusion of the reading many Senators gathered around the dying Senator to give expression to their respect and sympathy. He left the Senate chamber for the last time as he had entered, supported by the arms of his two friends. He was taken to the Old Capitol, and in a few days passed [illegible]

That undiscovered country from whose [illegible] no traveler returns.

[illegible] hundred and seventeen children have been learning [illegible] "Father, dear father, come home," [illegible] the solo, while the other one hundred and sixteen join in the chorus until each one has successively given a tug at their father's domestic affections. The chorus tear [illegible]ham's tender vitals to flinders.

A Roman Catholic priest, Father [illegible], a [illegible] member of the [illegible] Santa Maria Maggiore, has abandoned the old church and received baptism at the hands of an English Baptist minister. The affair has created a profound sensation in Rome.

[illegible] of importance [illegible] the Chronicle. The general feeling [illegible] confidence in the future, but in the strength and endurance of our principal [illegible] without regard to whether there may be cases of individual failure or arising now and then, a fact which does not fail to mark the history of every [illegible]. The feeling that the country at large is also rapidly nearing the [illegible] for the resumption of specie payments appears to be quite prevalent, as is shown by the fact that prices of merchandise and general commodities at the East are getting down to a gold standard. And it is argued with great show of reason that, having reached the present condition through so much distress, it would be well to hold on to what we have gained and persevere until the desired end is accomplished, rather than seek the temporary relief of a further issue of currency, the effect of which would be sooner or later to bring about a recurrence of the storm through which the country has just passed. Having made so costly a sacrifice, many believe that the country should fight it out on the line of a resumption of specie payments if it takes Congress all winter to perfect the measure.

The demand for money here continues quite large and is barely satisfied by the application of the available funds at hand. The banks are, however, still discounting as far as their means warrant, exercising due discretion in favor of the actual needs of their customers as far as they can be determined. In the market rates on general business paper are still high, while choice commercial notes and acceptances which are always wanted by cautious capitalists find ready purchasers at lower rates.

The financial panic, the effect of which has spread throughout the country, began in New York, and to that great financial center we must probably look for the impulse which is to bring about a reaction, restore confidence, and bring matters once again into their ordinary condition, or at least, to do away with unnecessary distrust and suspicion of everything. We are therefore glad to learn that the accounts from New York are more cheering, and that confidence is beginning to return, although money continues stringent. The New York national banks announce that they now hold twenty-one millions in currency.

Gold Coinage.

The arrivals of gold in New York during October amounted to $10,000,000. Of this amount $8,770,000 in coin and $1,611,000 in bullion, making $8,481,000 foreign gold was sent to the New York Assay Office. The Assay Office sent $5,913,719 40 gold to the Philadelphia mint for coinage. The mint at Philadelphia received altogether $10,000,000 gold for coinage, of which $8,913,719 60 was the foreign gold and $1,186,830 29 mostly light gold recoined. The Philadelphia and San Francisco mints coined as follows:

	Philadelphia Pieces	Philadelphia Value	San Fran Value
Gold coinage	60,560	$1[illegible] 00	$[illegible]
Gold bars		1,[illegible] 74
Silver coinage	400	18 00
Trade dollars			6,000
Silver bars		46,[illegible]
Base coinage	1,920,000	19,200 00
Total	[illegible]	$11,[illegible]	$2,[illegible]

The whole of the San Francisco coinage was new gold, while that of Philadelphia is imported gold and recoinage. The actual addition to the gold currency for the month was $8,423,000 at both mints. In the meantime the gold in the United States Treasury increased from $80,[illegible] October 1 to $82,337,561 November 1, notwithstanding that the customs had declined.

English Wheat Market.

The Mark Lane Express of Oct. [illegible] says: The more, however, our own crop comes through the machine or under the flail, the more apparent it is that the yield is unusually bad, and whatever temporary depreciation now takes place it is pretty certain to be made up or overpaid by a rise as we near the end of our term. The high prices already offered have attracted large supplies from every available quarter, and these heavy deliveries now pouring into English ports, tend to keep prices from going up. There will soon be a falling off in the imports, incident to the exhaustion of supplies and the winter embargo on certain sources. The same authority adds: "With liberal foreign arrivals at so early a date and stocks here accumulating, quietness, for a time seems to be certain, but a sharp competition for adequate supplies appears equally certain from next May to July and later." Present shipments from California are being made under the expectation of much higher prices in the English market [illegible] tion of trade.

[illegible]

Fine silver is worth in gold at present about $1 2[illegible] per ounce, making the price of [illegible] silver (nine hundred [illegible] fine) [illegible] e. The weight [illegible] dollars is [illegible] by law is 38[illegible] grains [illegible] 480 grains to one ounce Troy) are worth [illegible] gold [illegible] 34 8 10 grains at [illegible] the [illegible]

The [illegible] on the [illegible] concerned, [illegible] improvement [illegible] the old tariff, there being only forty-four [illegible] of articles liable to duty. The principal feature of the new tariff is the reduction of the duty on iron. Pig iron of all kinds will not be liable to duty in future. Chain cables and wire rope for river navigation purposes are free of duty. Certain articles of iron and steel will be free of duty from 1st of January, 1877. The duty will continue to be calculated according to hundredweights and not according to kilogrammes, and all declarations at the Custom Houses are to be made in hundredweights and pounds. Export duties are abolished, and thus the duty hitherto paid on rags, etc., will not be levied on their being exported in future.

A great financial scandal has been produced at Berlin, where the bank directed by M. Quistrop has been obliged to suspend its payments. This failure has caused an unprecedented perturbation in the market. Retail traders are chiefly affected in consequence of the disappearance of certain industrial establishments aided by the bank in question.

The English Board of Trade has received from the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs copies of decrees published in the official gazettes of Austria and Hungary suspending the import duties levied in the Austrian Empire on corn and leguminous plants from the 1st of October 1873 until the 30th September 1874.

The decree establishing a duty on the exportation of wines from Spain, published in the Madrid Official Gazette of the [illegible] inst., extends to minerals, dry and fresh fruits and every article of the produce and manufacture of the country.

There were in port at San Francisco on the 13th inst. [illegible] disengaged vessels, with [illegible] tonnage [illegible] tons.

NEW REMEDIES! NEW REMEDIES!

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established 1854 for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Disease.

How many thousands of persons both male and female are there who are suffering from a miserable existence, from the effects of secret indulgence, or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at the pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken down constitutions disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrible situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene, let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies, so that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Seek Dr. GIBBON's physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are affected, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combated by scientific medical measures, viz.: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained let them apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

Married Men,

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies should not place the sacred responsibility resting upon them a moment longer in [illegible] but immediately place themselves under the care of DR. GIBBON, who is responsible, and will give to a patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure or make no charge.

Cured at Home.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars in a registered letter through the Post office or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union. All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who with bragging assertions to certificates, the unwary, some of the self styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen, and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, hack carriers, [illegible] keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing and may save you many regrets, for as advertising physicians in nine cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus certificates pretended patients [illegible] as evidence of his ability to treat disease that he can cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearny street, corner Commercial, San Francisco. Postoffice Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER. Consultations FREE.

Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the DAILY OREGONIAN. jy3d[illegible]
